1.  INTRODUCTION

Records are created or received during the conduct of business and contain information and evidence of organizational activities. Public records are key to accountability and good governance because they reflect the municipality's functions, activities, procedures and the administrative processes that generate them, as well as the facts, acts and transactions affiliated to them.

In a nutshell, records enable governmental bodies to function. The important role of records in governmental bodies therefore cannot be under-estimated. Records prove what you did, why you did it and the results of that action. To be useful however, records must be managed effectively.

The focus of records management is on creation, evaluation, storage, access, retrieval, dissemination, use and disposition of records in any form or media. Records management is therefore not media specific or limited by time and space. The advent of technology has led some to assume that records management technologies and electronic records are to some degree, different and supersede paper records.
This is because traditionally, the use of information technologies was not considered to be part of records management, but in essence, they are, in so far as the technologies are used for creating, maintaining, using or disposing recorded information.

Accountability, transparency and good governance are the bedrock on which all efforts to realise democracy, depend. Sound records management is of vital importance in the realisation of these ideals.  It is the foundation any government needs to provide services, to fulfil its obligation of accountability towards its citizens and to protect their rights in addition to it being essential in order to conduct office business and make public administration more efficient and effective.

Records management is the responsibility of every municipal official involved in one or more aspects of records management.

This policy has been compiled in terms of the provisions of Section 9(a) of the Provincial Archives and Records Service of the Western Cape Act (No 3 of 2005) and Records Management Policy of Western Cape Governmental Bodies, 2017.
